TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1916.

The main estimates of the Dominion government are ten million only lower than the whole expenditure for the current year.

The supplementary estimates may be confidently counted upon to make away with about ten millions, and perhaps more. Economy is a word not found in the lexicon of a "dash away and spend the money" administration.

The whole amount of assistance needed by Western farmers is estimated at eleven million dollars. If the Dominion government gave that amount outright to the misfortunate farmers it would be only a fraction of what they have needlessly shovelled out in the last three years, and would probably only prevent the money going for less useful purposes.

Hon. W. T. White is not the first man to frame a Canadian tariff for the exclusion of British and foreign goods upon the plea that he hopes to exact more revenue from the people who find it cheaper to buy such goods than to patronize home industry. But he seems to have carried the self-evident fallacy farther than any predecessor since Sir Charles Tupper first afflicted the Canadian people with National Protection.

The Russian hope is to capture Constantinople, and open the Black sea to the commerce of the world. Half a century ago Britain and France fought Russia to prevent that. Just now they are probably sorry they did it, and will likely help rather than hinder the attainment of the long-desired Russian ideal. The more so that the alternative seems to be to have the control of the Bosphorus in the hands of Turkey or Germany.

There is now a mile of railway in Alberta for each 125 people. That number of people cannot of course pay interest charges and operating expenses on a mile of railway, nor provide business for it. If our population did not increase, the railway companies must become bankrupt trying to keep up the roads. But the population will increase. The railways, which require no increase, are the means which make the increase possible. We have asked our credit on the belief that the vacant places will be filled up when the means of production occupying them have been supplied. A continuance of vigorous immigration policy is the necessary complement to our rapid extension of railway facilities.

The disinclination of the commissioners to restore trading privileges on the Rice street market may be due to a feeling that this would be a reflection upon Harrison, who as executive commissioner of the parks and market department was in a sense responsible for playing the Rice street market off the first street site. If the commissioner were solely responsible for the mistake that would be no excuse for depriving the people of the benefits of an active market. Nor would it be doing him much service to aggravate and advertise the consequences of his mistake by proving that an active market was doomed to destruction when moved to the building. But the commissioner is not solely responsible for the mistake. He proposed, but the burgesses dissented. Honestly and disinterestedly demand that the property be shared with the commissioner the blame for the misadventure in which both agencies were concerned. Having discovered that we made a mistake, we pocket our feelings, charge the loss to the property account, and proceed to save ourselves from the other consequences by reneuing the market from extinction.

On Saturday the Journal declared in a heading that "Some members of his own Government" thought Premier Sifton should not have protested against the demand of the Dominion government that any former receiving provisions for his family from the Dominion should be made to give in security a first mortgage on his land. Names, please.

The increased tariff and the imposition of direct taxation are not means of raising money for the war fund. The Rice street is being added to the national debt. The additional three millions demanded from the public are demanded to keep up the expenditure on ordinary services at a pace of extravagance set at a time when the government had more money than it knew what to do with.

The demand is not merely that the first street market should be closed, but that the Rice street site must not be re-opened. That is an admission that if the Rice street market is re-opened the first street market will automatically go out of business. In other words, the Rice street market is the place where the public want the market. As the public do the paying, why should their administrative choice be refused by a council elected to protect and promote the public interests?

The Minister of Finance requires an extra thirty million dollars revenue to meet the contemplated expenditure for the coming year. To get it he proposes to increase the tariff on foreign goods about one-quarter, and the tariff on British goods one-third. The proof of the pudding is in the eating. Whether the new tariff will bring in revenue, Mr. Weichel, M.P. for North Waterloo, and seconded by Mr. Achin, member for Lethbridge, Mr. Weichel, who is of German origin, and represents a constituency which is largely of the same origin, had a delicate task to perform in making the first speech of moving the first resolution in a session of Parliament the principal business of which was to maintain aggressive war against Germany. It is fair to say that he discharged the duty with the greatest credit to himself and his constituents he said:

"We are proud of German science, German art and literature, and medicine, and we are not proud of the violation of the neutrality of Belgium, we are not proud of the burning of Louvain, we are not proud of the destruction of the Rhine, German art and science and literature is one thing; Prussian militarism is another."

Mr. Achin, who was elected as a follower of Mr. Bourassa in the county formerly represented by that gentleman, alluded to his feeling to the absence of members serving the cause of the Empire, and made special mention of Hon. Dr. Ireland, who took part in the defence of Antwerp, and who is now a prisoner of Germany. He supported the policy of "Help to the Empire which means help to Canada." He insisted on the Bourassa-Bourassa idea that Canada must have a voice in the councils of the Empire. He said: "I hope that our participation this time will not create a precedent."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier pledged the support of the Opposition to the Government war policy. He said: "We have conceived it to be our high duty to do or say nothing to embarrass the action of those who for the time being have the confidence of the people and the responsibility of government." At the same time the country should be made fully aware of the disposition of money voted and expended, and should expect to have brought to account any who have dealings with the Government especially in connection with war materials sought to secure undue advantage.

The Premier said that Canada now had twenty-one thousand men in Great Britain and France; one thousand in Bermuda; ten thousand doing garrison duty in Canada, and fifty thousand now being trained from which the expeditionary force would go and their places would then be filled by new recruits. He pronounced that Parliament would have every opportunity to know what disposition had been made of money voted.

Dr. Clark said: "The paramount duty of Canada was to get behind the men in the trenches and keep behind them. The primary duty of Parliament was to present a united front to the enemy." "There was no reason for partisanship in the high duty that lay before the Parliament and people of Canada. This was the attitude of the Opposition. ## IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

Ottawa, Feb. 9th, 1916.

The first business day of the second war session, it is possible gave less indication that a war was in progress in which the existence of the British Empire was at stake, than did the opening day, which was purely ceremonial.

While the several speeches in many of their passages did credit to the speakers, in each there was a reference to economic conditions which it seemed might have been either subordinated or entirely left out on such an occasion. The mover of the address alluded to the fact that there had been either subordinated or entirely left out on such an occasion. The mover of the address alluded to the fact that there had been either subordinated or entirely left out on such an occasion.

The address in reply was moved by Mr. Weichel, M.P. for North Waterloo, and seconded by Mr. Achin, member for Lethbridge, Mr. Weichel, who is of German origin, and represents a constituency which is largely of the same origin, had a delicate task to perform in making the first speech of moving the first resolution in a session of Parliament the principal business of which was to maintain aggressive war against Germany. ## FOUR SMILING WINDOWS FULL OF THEM TODAY, FOR YOU TO SEE AND GLOAT OVER

A NOTHER almost blinding storm of 'the Beautiful just the other day'. The Whitewear Store (you'll see tomorrow) is snowed up with newly received white things, fallen in price from what they should be!—Dazzling, fluffy piles of white drifted in and already commencing to melt, though this is our first public intimation of their presence! Come at once—that's your wisest course—and gather up what you'll want—some of the daintiest wear for present, and some for future use. Good suggestion, isn't it?

The Prettiest of Crepe Nightgowns

A RE to be found in the assortment!—Prettiness goes you ever did see at a price so laughably little! Of course, we don't hope to see them remain here in any degree of choice very long—that would be hoping against fate (so to speak)—for they're nearly all destined to leave before many more busy shopping hours have passed!

One "Daisy" of a Gown

IN slipper style is a combination of simplicity and elegance! The maker put short kimono sleeves on it—edged the yoke and sleeves with fine tulle lace and inserted a tasteful little colored ribbon to produce a clever contrast. It with many another pretty kind—very specially priced—

Combinations of Corset Covers and Drawers

T HESSE, of a very fine English cambré, are hard to describe in their wonderful variety! A handsome little garment, for instance, is set in fine proportions with no lack of finishing touches, such as Series embroidery and lace, with insertion and tiny pink ribbon at neck—truly a bargain at

Another Admirable Combination

O F same material as above and trimmed yoke effect—thoroughly suitable to the occasion! Another has a delightful edging of tulle lace, while still another one carries lace borders of ribbon and lace in elegant taste. Each one you choose is very especially priced—

Lovely Eight-Inch Flounces

A DOIN the underskirts in mention—flounces of a wide variety of patterns, some of insertion and embroidery with smart pin tucks—others embroidered with a delicate ribbon—each one is a gem. Better seen than told here. Each very specially priced—gain reduced for the third time in less than two years, saving the user, in all, an average of 37 per cent.

Goodyear

When war began we resolved to keep our factory wheels moving. And now the war tax, severe as it seems to some, has only fired our determination more.

On March 1st we will double the capacity of our plant at Bowmanville, Ontario. Instead of raising our prices we announce a radical reduction.

Every particle of material that goes into Goodyear Automobile Tires is subject to the war tax. And our company—not its customers—will pay this extra cost.

We will also give the user more in tire value than his money ever bought before.

Due to Gains Over the years as rubber came down in price, we reduced our tire prices apace. As manufacturing techniques and methods improved, we improved our year quality.

Exclusive Features Men call them Goodyear fortified tires because in five costly ways they combat tire trouble. And these are Goodyear's ways—no other maker has them. You get them regardless of price reductions. Please learn these five—they are listed here:

Fortified against rim-cuts—by our no-rim-cut feature; against blow-outs—by our air-clip feature; against tread shredding—by many rubber rivets; against insecurity—by 176 braided piano wires; against punctures and skidding—by our double thick all-weather tread.

For a long, long time most tires have sold much above Goodyear's prices. Some makers have asked you one-third higher. A few have sold lower and always will, because of less rubber, and less science in construction.
